To whom it may concern

My company has used the services of Wren Oil for the provision of our hydrocarbon waste disposal for many years and during that time they have continued to give good reliable and environmentally responsible service. This has given us a high level of confidence in being able to meet our statutory environmental obligations.

Knowing they are the only used oil collecting company with an export facility is also very important to us as it removes the danger a waste oil glut like that which occurred a few years ago and which cause very severe disruptions to our industry.

I have no hesitation in recommending Wren Oil to any company requiring this type of service.
